

三

This image shows a single page from a Persian newspaper. The page features several large, bold, decorative headings in the center, likely titles for different sections or articles. The main body of the text is organized into two columns of dense Persian script. The handwriting is fluid and typical of Persian calligraphy used in printed media.

